Institutional Research, Assessment & Effectiveness: Identified four years ago, this strategic initiative has now become critical. Advancements in a variety of areas, including personnel, software and processes, are needed to develop sustainable systems that will: (1) define, measure and assess appropriate outcomes linked to institutional goals and objectives (strategic, academic, co-curricular, and support), (2) regularize/standardize institutional research, assessment and planning activities for decision-making, continuous improvement and accreditation purposes and (3) provide high quality, self-service information to departments/programs for their assessment and planning efforts.

Innovation and Technology Deployment: This strategic initiative advances the institutional commitment to create and nurture a campus-wide culture of innovation, an undertaking launched by the 2020 Vision strategic initiative of "Transforming Teaching and Learning." This 2024 initiative requires the university to facilitate imaginative thinking and leverage technology to enhance both the effectiveness and efficiency of academic (including learning methods, modalities and delivery systems), co-curricular, administrative, and support activities.

Risk Management and Mitigation: This strategic initiative grows out of a recognition of the University need to create and implement regular, on-going systems for the identification, prioritization, and institutional response to emerging risk situations. This includes the more traditional elements of risk management mitigation (e.g. insurance audits, contract review), as well as the need for systems which ensure regular analysis of substantial internal and external factors and risks, and the creation of mitigation and contingency plans. Included on the initial list are institutional governance structure, leadership succession and training, and partner concentration.
